Not Talk Now as to Tax Cut

President Plans
Sending Three
Messages to the New Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—President Truman declined today to talk about prospects for tax reductions at a news conference in which he said he will send three separate messages to the new Congress.

Told that the Republicans in Congress were saying they would not cooperate if he makes "radical" recommendations, Mr. Truman asked, who can say what is radical?

He said his recommendations in his State of the Union message would all for what he believes to be necessary for the welfare of the United States.

This message will embrace his viewpoint, he said, adding that members of congress were entitled to have theirs.

He refused to be drawn into a discussion of the administration's

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—If it hadn't been for strikes, President Truman said today, it would have been possible to end the war emergency before now.

The chief executive made the flat statement, without elaboration, during questioning at a news conference.

The subject was brought up by a reporter who asked when the president might recommend termination of the war emergency. He declined to speculate, but observed that it could have been done before this if strikes had not interrupted reconversion.

future policy toward John L. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, against whom the government is waging a court fight.

No Strike Comment
Mr. Truman told questioners the Lewis matter was in the courts and he would have nothing to say about the mine workers' leader or about the recent coal strike.

You hope the courts will follow the election returns?" One reporter pressed. Mr. Truman replied with a smile no comment.

The president said he would send separately to the new Republican-controlled congress a State of the Union legislative message, a message on the budget and a third message based on the report to be made soon by his economic advisory (maximum employment) council.

These messages, the president said, will be sent to capitol hill on separate days.

Asked whether he saw any chance for reduction of taxes, the president said he did not want to discuss what recommendations he will make.

Renew Merger Request
He did say, however, that he will renew his request for a merger of the armed forces as one point in his State of the Union message.

Told that there had been reports he proposed to recommend modification of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the president replied bluntly that nobody had a right to quote him until he made public his message to congress.

The house committee on post-war economic policy and planning added its voice today to the congressional clamor for new labor legislation.

In its final report, the 18-member group composed of both Democrats and Republicans called for "constructive—not unitive" laws to eliminate labor-management disputes and at the same time cautioned against a depression psychology.

"There is nothing wrong with the country that hard work and resultant production will not cure," the committee commented. "Considering everything, there is no necessity for either a depression or recession."

Productivity, it said, is "the real solution for many of the nation's economic problems" and "active cooperation between management and labor" is necessary to eliminate immediately current difficulties and "avoid a recession."

Among other things the committee called for:

An end to OPA's general powers next January 31, with rent controls continuing through 1947.

Cutting the current $41,000,000 federal budget to $30,000,000, with "some reduction" in taxes and the national debt.

Across the capital, however, Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), one of congress' chief economy advocates, declared there should be no tax reduction at all in 1947.

Byrd told reporters it would be "reckless" to cut taxes until congress makes sure the government has been placed on a stable financial basis.

Control More Direct
In one respect the Albanian incident, aside from the greater loss of life, is of greater significance than the Tito affair, for Russian control in Albania is much more direct than in Yugoslavia.

Ban Witness Quizzing by Senator Bilbo

Testimony Given On Contacts With Him by Officers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—

High ranking army officers testified today that Senator Theodore Bilbo (D-Miss.) contacted them many times about awarding $25,932,361 of war contracts in his home state of Mississippi.

Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Robins, retired, told the Senate war investigating sub-committee that as early as 1940 Senator Bilbo "brought contractors down to our offices" and recommended them for many multi-million dollar jobs.

Douglas L. McKay, retired colonel now in charge of army engineer wartime contract records, identified more than 40 different contracts that were awarded in Mississippi.

Bilbo was barred from cross examining witnesses.

Chairman Mead (D-N.Y.) announced this ruling as a senator war investigating sub-committee opened public hearings here with Bilbo and his attorney, Forrest B. Jackson of Jackson, Miss., on hand.

Jackson asked whether he or Bilbo might question witnesses.

Mead replied that the committee would "not allow cross examination to take place" because it "did not like to have authority transferred to anyone not a member of the committee."

Must be in Writing

But both Mead and Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) suggested that if Bilbo or his attorney had any questions they wished asked of witnesses, the questions could be presented in writing to the committee.

Opening the hearing, Chairman Mead said the war investigating

Blum Head of Interim Regime

PARIS, Dec. 12—(P)—Socialist Leon Blum, 74, was elected president-premier today of the interim French government which will serve until mid-January.

Vote tabulations said the national assembly gave Blum about 575 ballots. He needed 310 for the absolute majority.

Blum now faces the task of getting the parties to agree on a program, and on whether the Rightist parties should be included in the cabinet.

His cabinet, which is not expected to remain in power much longer than 30 days, will be occupied chiefly with voting a budget for the first quarter of 1947.

Blum's most outstanding role since he was liberated from a German prison camp in May, 1945, was the negotiation of the United States loan to France last spring.

The new cabinet he would be called upon to form is scheduled to last until mid-January, when a permanent government is to be established.

The Socialist party had announced earlier that the aging Blum, who was premier in 1936-37 and again for a short period in 1938, had agreed to return from political retirement to head the Bothwell hospital, where they were treated by Dr. W. M. Wheeler.

Dr. Wheeler said that Mrs. Smith's left arm was broken just above the wrist and that she had abrasions on the face. Mr. Smith suffered slight bruises and cuts.

They were released after treatment and continued to Kansas City by train. Mr. Smith will return later for the slightly damaged jeep, which was left by State Patrolman Pete Stohr at the Fred Whitfield garage in Dresden.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT
2 Sedalia, Mo., Thursday,
December 12, 1946

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—There was one important fact unknown to the thousands of veterans who flooded the White House with protests against the firing of the housing administrator Wilson Wyatt. What these protestants did not know—and they included veterans of Foreign Wars' commander Louis Starr, Amvets commander Ray Sawyer and American Veterans committee commander Charles Bolte—was that the American Legion, influenced by the powerful real estate lobby, helped administer the last death blow to Wyatt and his veterans housing program.

The American Legion's skillful drive against the housing program began last September just before its San Francisco convention, when the powerful national association of home builders sent lobbying instructions to its members to buttonhole Legion delegates and do their best to undermine the Wyatt housing program.

"Determine from your local county and state American Legion officers who the delegates are to the convention," the home builders lobby advised. "Talk to every Legionnaire you know to prevent any resolution endorsing Wyatt's housing program for veterans."

However, the mass of Legionnaires at San Francisco rallied to the defense of Wyatt and his housing program, so temporarily the real estate lobby lost.

But not for long. As a compromise a hand-picked committee of Legionnaires was appointed to study housing. And last week, national commander Paul Griffith called on President Truman and spent nearly an hour cutting the ground out from under Wilson Wyatt, the man who had done his best to build homes for veterans.

Griffith told Truman he was convinced the present housing setup should be abolished and placed in the hands of an emergency board, working in unison with the federal housing administration. He argued that the great majority of war vets do not want to buy, and do not have the money to buy homes in the current high market. Therefore, more multiple units for renting should be built. (The latter, incidentally, was the same recommendation previously made by Wyatt.)

Griffith added that his proposal for abolishing Wyatt's office was based on a nationwide survey of veterans' housing conditions by a seven-man board of Legion World War II vets. This survey showed conclusively, the Legion boss contended, that Wyatt's program to get roofs over the heads of homeless vets had been a dismal failure.

Commander Griffith, however, neglected to point out that the hierarchy of his own organization deserves a large share of the blame for current housing conditions. Had Legionnaire Griffith and his cohorts used their influence to expedite passage of the Patman bill, instead of standing on the sidelines while the measure languished for months in congress and had they later not encouraged by their silence the strike of building material producers against price controls, the vets housing program would be a lot further advanced than it is today.

Capital Chaff
The man who first urged President Truman to begin mass strip mining of coal to break John L. Lewis was Truman's old friend and critic, Harold Ickes. Ickes pointed out that strip mining would supply enough fuel to keep the country going longer than out. It was when Lewis heard the White House planned to use troops for strip mining that he finally surrendered. Ex-undersecretary of state Sumner Welles will soon make his first European tour since he talked to Hitler and Mussolini in 1940 in an effort to get them to call off the war. Congratulations to Speaker-to-be Joe Martin for his confidential message to the Republican national committee last week. "We have a job to do," he said, "and the American people will judge us by how well we do it. That job is bigger than any political party." The United Nations, still pussyfooting on the Franco issue, probably won't make any decisions on ousting the Spanish Fascist dictator at the present session of the general assembly. Secretary Byrnes held a secret showdown conference last week over Argentina, at which assistant secretary Spruille Braden demanded that American ambassador to Argentina George Messersmith be fired.

"Furthermore," he added, "we can tell you that you'll have courteous newspapers and convention hall galleries which will leave the job of picking candidates and drawing a platform to the delegates."

One member complained that delegates to a previous Cleveland convention had to sleep on boats.

"That," replied Bender, "was a matter of choice. We brought several boats into the dock and people liked sleeping on them. Also, the docks are just a few steps from the auditorium, so you don't have a long trip from your living quarters to the convention hall."

Werner Schroeder of Illinois threw one monkey wrench into Cleveland's machinery, however, when he pointed out that the Ohio State Republican committee was behind in its assessment to the national committee. Bender promised to try to get them to pay up.

New Head of Pan American Union

The sudden, tragic death of Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union since 1920, will bring a quick showdown in the long smouldering feud between a strong Latin bloc and the U. S. government over basic policies of the union.

Last year, at the Mexico City conference, delegates from several Latin countries tried to get U. S. representatives to persuade Dr. Rowe that he should retire at the end of his 25th year, in September, 1945.

This was not a personal issue, for they all respected the venerable diplomat and one-time undersecretary of the treasury. Their quarrel was strictly with the unbroken monopoly of the PAU directorship by U. S. citizens since the institution was founded in 1890.

This backstage maneuver got underway, however, and the delegates at Mexico City finally voted to give Dr. Rowe another ten years' tenure with the important proviso that thereafter the job must rotate among the member countries.

The nations which led the fight for this rotation—Colombia, Chile, Mexico and Panama—have recently expressed varying degrees of concern at what they regard as U. S. tendency to ignore the inter-American system in favor of the United Nations. They feel that the United States is more concerned with UN activities than with Pan American problems.

Today, therefore, sentiment has crystallized among most of the Latinas for immediate appointment of a strong pro-hemisphere man, not previously connected with administration of the Pan American union, to succeed Dr. Rowe. They want a man who will place Pan Americanism ahead of the United Nations.

Dr. Pedro de Alba, for many years assistant PAU director and former Mexican congressman, wants the post but will not get it. A very good bet, on the other hand, is Alberto Lleras Camargo, who was provisional president of Colombia for a year, ending last August. Lleras, then foreign minister of Colombia, led the fight for the reforms adopted at Mexico City.

The governing board of the Pan American Union will meet early in January to choose a new director general.

Hand paper making is still a sizable industry in Japan.

'Scientific' Twins Grow up Completely Different, But Still Just Normal Boys

Jimmy and Johnny Woods at four, six, eight and 14 years (top to bottom). Jimmy is on the left in each picture. Sister Jane, who posed with them on their eighth birthday, is alumna of same child development plan.

By Kay Sherwood
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—Twins Johnny and Jimmy Woods, scientific "guinea pigs" at the age of two, are growing up as robustly normal as their playmates who didn't have the benefit of all the specialized training psychologists cooked up for the boys and are as different as two kids from different families.

Johnny and Jimmy, two in a family of eight children, were subjects of intensive infant behavior experiments conducted by Dr. Myrtle B. McGraw in the Normal Child Development Study of the Columbia University and Babies Hospital.

For the first 22 months of their lives they spent eight hours a day in the laboratory. Jimmy was allowed to gurgle by himself in the crib as an average baby would; Johnny was scientifically stimulated to develop his physical prowess. He swam before he was a year old. By the time he was 16-months-old he was roller skating down the hall to the pool. Later Jimmy was given an intensive three-months' training to catch up with his twin.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Woods, regard their sons as completely "normal." Their interests are widely separated, but they rarely quarrel, says Mrs. Woods. The twins have never been any problem to her, but sometimes when they came home from the laboratory "they were a handful."

"At the clinic they learned to push pedestals together and climb up on them to get toys hung from the ceiling. When they came home they'll push chairs together and pull things off the bookcase. But they got marvelous care, I don't really know whether the training has made any difference."

Dr. McGraw, whose interest in the boys is now purely social, comments, "Being 'guinea pigs' did them no harm."

Both are in the eighth grade, but go to different schools.

Here's how the boys compare at 14:

JIMMY

Much slimmer than his twin, weighs 138 pounds and is five feet nine inches tall. He is neat, well mannered, restless and reticent in conversation with strangers.

"I go my own way. Yeah, I got a lot of friends. Now and then Johnny and I study together."

"Electrical wiring, that's what I like. That's why I picked my school. They got good shop courses. We're making lamps out of old boxes. Pretty soon I guess I can fix Mom's ironing cord."

"Sure I'll go to high school. But it's gotta be a good trade school."

"I play basketball. (Johnny got the physical push.) I'm on a team. I swim a lot, too. I like to bike ride (indicating his shiny new bicycle). Mom had to pay for most of it, but I paid for part of it out of money I made running errands after school."

"The training didn't make much difference to me one way or the other."

"Johnny and I don't play together very much. I got one or two good friends. I don't hang around with gangs."

In school, I like spelling best. Sometimes I get 100 per cent. But this month I handed in a sloppy paper and the teacher tore it up and gave me zero so maybe you'd better not say anything about that. Algebra's easy, too. Maybe when I get far deeper into it, it won't be."

"I'd like to go to college. I want to be a civil engineer."

"I like football, basketball, hockey and swimming—to watch. I guess I'm what you'd call a spec-

Find no Trace Of Meteorites

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 12—(AP)—Three searching parties which scoured central and eastern Nebraska yesterday failed to find traces of blazing meteorites sighted in five midwestern states on Tuesday night, C. B. Schultz, director of the University of Nebraska museum, said.

Prof. O. C. Collins, assistant professor of astronomy at the university, who was among the searchers, estimated that the meteor exploded about 10 miles above the earth. Schultz said many persons were questioned in an effort to compute the location of the explosion. (Reports were prevalent chiefly in Lincoln Tuesday night that an explosion had followed the sighting of the meteorites.)

Center of the search was Bee, Neb., about 20 miles northwest of Lincoln. Schultz said it was possible that pieces weighing 100 pounds or more might be found if the meteor did not burn up completely while in the air.

Mrs. A. R. Beach was the accompanist.

The closing song by the group was "America."

Concluding the program a play, "Pennies and Prayers," was presented by the Women's Guild. Those taking part were: Mrs. J. H. Brunkhorst, Mrs. S. Urban, Mrs. Richard Gray, Mrs. Herbert Winebrenner, Mrs. Lloyd Saterwhite, Mrs. Elmer Maune, Mrs. H. P. Vaughan, Mrs. Leonard Williams, Miss Donna Rae Knerl and Miss Alverda Withaus.

At a business meeting the following officers were re-elected: Leonard Williams, president; W. G. Borne, vice president; T. J. Flessa, treasurer, and Lloyd Saterwhite, secretary.

Chimes at the Epworth Church

The chimes of a Christmas carol rang out over East Sedalia Wednesday morning and members of the Epworth Methodist church were thrilled as they listened. Other people heard them, too, and wondered.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Herrick and tator sportsman. (At 16 months he could roller skate.)

"I'll talk to anybody, grownups or kids—if I think I can learn something from them."

"I don't go to movies much. I don't like those ones about guys that are mentally touched—you know, those killers. Historical movies of the past are okay, also Abbott and Costello."

"I don't have any girl. Once I took a dancing lesson and it wasn't so hot. I like to read—the condensed stuff about what's going on in the world."

"Now, I don't think the training made any difference in my life. I liked the clinic, though."

CIO Thinking Of 25-Percent Wage Increase

Increase Based on Report of Former Gov't Economist

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—The CIO adopted Wednesday as basis for new wage drive a report contending that industry can afford to raise wages up to 25 per cent and still keep profits at near wartime peaks without boosting prices.

Nation Flirts With Collapse

The report, prepared for the CIO by Robert R. Nathan, one-time key government economist, warned too that the nation is "flirting with collapse" unless industry increases wages promptly or sharply cuts prices.

Nathan's findings immediate provoked vigorous dissents from industry sources. He argued that profits have soared to record highs while prices have gone up and workers' earnings actually declined. The former chairman of the War Production Board's planning committee and deputy war mobilizer contended the "unbalance" threatens a depression unless quickly corrected.

Disagreeing opinions came from the machinery and Allied Products Institute and the Automobile Manufacturers Association. George Romney, general manager of the latter trade group, issued a statement calling the Nathan report "an economic fallacy."

Those exact words—"economic fallacy"—comprised Nathan's comment when questioned by reporters regarding the contention by Charles E. Wilson, president of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

The Nathan survey maintained that workers' earnings have actually decreased 3.5 per cent since January 1945 while corporate profits, after taxes, "are approaching $15,000,000,000, fully 1½ times the level of the best war year, x about 1¾ times the volume of 1929, and 3¾ times as high as the average of the years 1936-39."

Where Russians Seek Uranium

Map above shows mountainous area of German-Czech-Polish borders where Russians are reported intensively seeking pitchblende, chief source of uranium, used in atomic fission research. Prospecting near towns underlined on map recently was reported abandoned, with some of the machinery and specialists moved to Joachimsthal, where, in a guarded area, pitchblende is being mined and shipped in large quantities. Russians also are digging for the radioactive ore at Altheide and Dessau.

General Motors, that a 25 per cent raise in wages would cause a rise of the same proportion in automobile prices.

Nathan's survey was made public at a luncheon attended by government officials, industry representatives and by CIO's top leaders headed by President Philip Murray.

Interested observers at the luncheon while Nathan explained his views with clarity included Chairman Edwin G. Nourse of President Truman's new economic advisory council, Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug, Chairman W. Willard Wirtz of the National Wage Stabilization Board, Economist Leon Henderson, and Deputy Director Harold Stein of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

The research project was suggested by Rep. Douglas Mahnkin (R) of Taney county, chairman of the local government committee in the current general assembly.

Paul Porter On Economic Mission

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—Paul Porter, former price administrator, Wednesday was named the chief of an American economic mission to Greece.

Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, in announcing the appointment, said the mission will study economic conditions in Greece "as they bear upon the reconstruction and development of the economy of that country."

It will consider to what extent the Greek government can use its own resources for rebuilding the economy and the degree to which foreign help may be needed.

The mission is expected to leave Washington for Athens by air around Jan. 20. Acheson said it has been asked to complete its job by the end of next April.

It is being sent in answer to a request from Greek Prime Minister Constantine Tsaldaris to Secretary of State Byrnes.

Economic, financial and engineering experts will accompany Porter.

In announcing the mission, Acheson noted the "valiant stand of the Greeks against the Nazi invasion, their continued resistance and sacrifices throughout the long occupation, and the hardships consequent upon the war which they have endured since liberation."

After the dinner to which all contributed, there was an exchange of gifts around the Christmas tree.

Gifts of food and toys were brought by members to make up two baskets for needy families. These are to be added to funds allowed from the auxiliary treasury to make complete dinners.

The citations given by the U. S. O. to both the branch and auxiliary for work for that organization during the war years were on display.

Bilbo more than $30,000 in cash, a new home, an automobile and other things.

Mead said that the committee has not pre-judged the case "even though the full committee has decided that a prima facie case exists which compels the committee under its mandate from the Senate to proceed with a full and thorough investigation."

The chairman added that the present hearing will not cover Bilbo's "political or ideological philosophies."

Republicans, who will hold a majority in the new senate, have announced they will try to prevent Bilbo from taking his seat when congress convenes January third.

But the 69 year old veteran of Southern politics has voiced confidence that all charges against him will be cleared up before then.

committee has "instructed us to ascertain the truth with respect to alleged transactions between a member of the senate and certain war contractors."

He noted that a preliminary investigation has been made of complaints against Senator Bilbo and that as a result the full committee "was of the opinion that the facts as developed warranted a full investigation and unanimously instructed this sub-committee to conduct it."

Charges have been made that a group of war contractors gave should not take full responsibility for maintaining economic stability or full employment."

It emphasized that productivity is "the real solution for many of the nation's economic problems" and called for "active cooperation between management and labor to eliminate immediately the current difficulty so we can avoid a recession."

Fear Over Forty Die In A Fire

at the wreckage with bars, picks and bare hands, came across the pitiful remnants of gaily wrapped Christmas packages, holly and bits of tinsel.

One priest, the Rev. David Rea, climbed a ladder to reach a broken body and gave last rites. He also saw the legs and feet of two others protruding from the wreckage.

Major William O'Dwyer rushed to the scene and promised an investigation. Crowds watched rescue efforts from nearby rooftops and police roped off nearby streets. Among those listed as missing were a mother, Mrs. Edith Dirica, 31, and three children, Charles, 12; Margaret, 5, and Mary, six months.

The collapse came 15 minutes after the fire broke out at 12:10 a. m. Charles Whitecroft, nearby resident, said the falling wall "felt like an earthquake" and was followed by "terrible screaming of children."

After the collapse firemen heard frantic cries from the ruins and were able to drag out a number of victims.

Dr. Harry M. Archer, fire department surgeon, said he had crawled into the rubble and had given a hypodermic injection to a woman who clutched the dead body of a young boy.

The Rev. Joseph A. Boyle, fire department chaplain, also went into the ruins. He said he heard a woman calling weakly, "Please get me out of here. I'm all right." Firemen worked toward her.

Many of the more than 200 firemen at the scene formed a human chain, passing bricks, wood, masonry and smashed furniture to the street so rescue crews could dig deeper.

One crew of firemen tunneled with their hands through six feet of wreckage to reach a young girl, still alive.

A fireman wept with relief as he carried to safety a small boy who was still able to smile, though injured.

Guards to Play Police Team

The State Guard basketball team will enter the community basketball league Friday night at 8 o'clock when it meets the Sedalia Police department team on the court of Sacred Heart school.

This should prove to be an interesting tussle as the police team with a few games behind them for experience, has had a few new additions to the roster of players.

While, on the other hand, this is the State Guard's first game in this league they have an impressive array of basketball talent chalked up for the Friday night game.

Starting lineups are as follows: Sedalia Police Dept. — Allman and Ripley, forwards; White, center; King and Mahnken, guards. State Guard — Bill Angel and Bettis, forwards; Wareham, center; Bob Angel and Williams, guards.

Chief Finnel is the coach for the police team and Sgt. Pete Salmon will take over the State Guard team.

"Cost of Living" Bonus Granted to Teachers

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa., Dec. 12.—(P)—A $200 "cost of living" bonus for the remainder of the school year has been granted teachers of the Webb City schools. It will be paid on the basis of $40 each month.

The faculty members originally asked for a bonus of $500.

Methodists To Spend $100,000 On Buildings

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa., Dec. 12.—(P)—The Methodist church will spend more than $100,000 in new buildings to cope with shifting population trends, predicts Dr. Earl R. Brown, home mission executive secretary of the Methodist church.

Dr. Brown, addressing the annual meeting of the board of missions and church extension, declared that a shift of population from central city sections into the suburbs is necessitating a major church building program.

He noted that a preliminary investigation has been made of complaints against Senator Bilbo and that as a result the full committee "was of the opinion that the facts as developed warranted a full investigation and unanimously instructed this sub-committee to conduct it."

Charges have been made that a group of war contractors gave should not take full responsibility for maintaining economic stability or full employment."

It emphasized that productivity is "the real solution for many of the nation's economic problems" and called for "active cooperation between management and labor to eliminate immediately the current difficulty so we can avoid a recession."

and true vision. Let me place them in my head. Then let me look out through the window at the snow lying deep and crisp and even, as far as those beautiful eyes can see. Let me drink in the looks of joy on the faces of those who love me, who have seen me groping and stumbling in the dark for so long. Let me hold those eyes aloft to the Christmas star that I might not forget the true meaning of Christmas. Let me see all these things so that the memory of the last Christmas I saw might be blotted forever from my mind. Replace the screaming of shells, the rumbling of tanks, the sound of tired marching feet with the singing of hymns, the laughter of little sisters, and the voices of thankful people. Replace the filthy, smelly mud of battle and the drawn faces of dying men with the cool feeling of fresh, clean sheets and the hopeful faces of men born anew.

Bring me those eyes for these purposes and I will be grateful forever to Him who once gave them to me. If on Christmas morn I should not find them there, I won't really mind, and I will still be grateful to God. For haven't I still a good mind, a strong body, friends who love me, and a desire to justify the reason for my existence? After all, aren't these the important things in life?

So, Santa, there it is. That's what I want for Christmas. Please try, won't you?

From a grown-up little boy, Cpl. Chester R. Perkins.

Concessions By Molotov

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(P)—

Paced by a new round of concessions from Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the big four foreign ministers council arranged to finish its historic peacemaking sessions in New York today, after having completed plans for drafting German and Austrian peace settlements.

A final meeting was scheduled for 3 p. m. (C. S. T.) to clean up minor details of the five European satellite peace treaties and approve the draft of a six-point agenda for the big four conference in Moscow March 10 to begin work on treaties with Germany and Austria.

In a busy, swift-moving session

last night the big four agreed that prior to the Moscow sessions small nations would be given full opportunity to present their proposals for German and Austrian settlements to boards of great power deputy foreign ministers in London beginning January 14.

Due mainly to last minute agreement by Molotov it was also decided that Secretary of State James F. Byrnes' proposal for sharply limiting occupation armies in Europe and for a 40-year German disarmament pact would be carefully considered at the Moscow meeting.

The difficulty of the Army's training program comes from something else.

Monterey is no more and no less hostile to Nisei than is the rest of California. When the boys are on liberty, they circulate freely in the streets of the town. But they are not accepted as social equals in Monterey any more than they might be in another California community, where for generations there has been a varying degree of suspicion and misunderstanding of all persons of Japanese ancestry.

Civilian Contacts

Believing that it is especially essential for these troops to maintain their contacts with civilian life if they are to successfully interpret American life to Japan, the Army called in the USAO.

Mirri Miyake, a bright-eyed, smiling young Nisei girl and a special USAO worker, solved the Army's problem. It was no easy task, for the number of Nisei families in and around Monterey was limited. Painstakingly, Miss Miyake searched for young Nisei women, first in the Central California coastal area, then as far north as Palo Alto, nearly 100 miles away, and finally as far south as King City.

When she told her story, dozens of Nisei girls offered to help. The Army provided the necessary transportation and located senior hostesses. A Special Service band, under the inspired leadership of Pvt. Shiduru Hotoke (pronounced to rhyme with "swing and sway") provided the music. The 150 jitterbugging language troops provided the enthusiasm, and 125 Nisei girls tried valiantly to dance with every one of them, at least once during the evening.

That first dance was such a complete success that Capt. Hjalmar A. Lind, Special Service officer, and J. B. Wilbur, director of the Monterey USAO Club, agreed that they should be repeated as often as possible.

The boys figure as far as they are concerned that should be every night.

Katz Objects to Names Used

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 12—Katz Drug Company of Kansas City is the plaintiff in a civil injunction and damage suit filed in federal court here Monday. The action seeks to enjoin William Couhig of Sedalia, "doing business under the name and style of 'Cats Drug Store'" and "Cats Drugs," and "Cats Drugs" the plaintiff asks an accounting on all profits and for damages and costs in the amount of $3,000 damages and costs.

The petition alleges the names adopted by Couhig imitates the Katz corporation's copyrighted name and alleges damages to their business and reputation in addition to asking that the defendant be enjoined from using the name "Cats Drug Store" and "Cats Drugs" the plaintiff asks an accounting on all profits and for damages and costs in the amount of $3,000.

Chief Finnel is the coach for the police team and Sgt. Pete Salmon will take over the State Guard team.

Truck Over Curb Killing Woman

ST. JOSEPH, Dec. 12.—(P)—A truck careened out of a traffic collision and plunged over a curbing last night, taking the life of one woman and seriously injuring another.

Mrs. Pearl Watson, 55, who was standing on the sidewalk, died shortly after the accident. Mrs. Maggie Lewis, 64, who had been talking with Mrs. Watson, was taken to a hospital.

Bernard Long, 18, driver of the truck, was taken into custody, and his passenger, Herbert C. Moore, 17, was held as a material witness.

Mrs. Watson's death was the 12th traffic fatality of the year.

Police reported the truck had neither lights nor brakes. Dr. B. W. Tadlock, county coroner, said no inquest would be held, saying "evidence of criminal negligence in this case is overwhelming."

Income Tax--Single Standard?

Treasury Officials Seek to Unify 'Split' Privileges in Income Tax Now Allowed In Only Nine States

Community Property Benefits Would Extend to All U. S. Taxpayers

By S. Burton Heath
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—Treasury officials are working on a plan that would permit husbands and wives in all states to split their income equally for income tax purposes. At present this can be done only in nine states and Hawaii, which have what are known as Community Property laws.

General Counsel Joseph J. O'Connell, Jr., mentioned this idea in a recent address before the California state bar. Stanley S. Surrey, tax legislative counsel of the treasury, discussed it a few days later before the American Institute of Accountants, meeting in Atlantic City.

Nothing will be done immediately. The new republican control over Congress places initiative in tax matters in GOP hands, and there is every indication that the new Congress will devote its first attention to an across-the-board personal income tax cut which would only be delayed by tinkering with the details.

But there is a feeling that, before too long, something will be done to give residents of the other states the privilege now confined to those of Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Washington and Hawaii.

There the wife has a half right to anything belonging to her husband, and he has a half right to anything of his wife's. As a result, the wife can claim, and report for taxation, half of her husband's income.

This is not important in the lower income brackets. But once the taxable income exceeds $2,000, after deductions and personal exemptions, it can result in substantial savings.

In most states a man with an income of $20,000 after deductions but before personal exemptions, having a wife but no dependents, would pay a tax of $6,393.50.

In any of the Community Property states mentioned, this man and his wife can split his income and pay a tax of $2,346.50 each—or only $4,693 for both, a saving of $1,699.50.

For several years the unfairness of letting some taxpayers do what others can not has been recognized. Several attempts have been made to eliminate the difference. One would have required husbands and wives to file joint returns. This was beaten by charges that such a law would reduce women to slavery, would break up homes, and would encourage divorce.

So the thought now is to approach the problem from the other direction. Instead of taking the privilege away from residents of community property states, it would be extended to taxpayers in the other states.

As O'Connell and Surrey have outlined the idea a husband and wife living together would total their income, divide it in half, and compute the tax on the basis of one exemption. That tax then would be doubled. Presumably, though this was not mentioned, provision would be made for handling the exemptions for dependents.

It is estimated that if such a provision were introduced without any offset through increased tax rates, it would cost the federal treasury around $1,000,000,000 a year.

There is potential criticism on two other scores. One is that such a change would constitute a tax reduction for those above the lower incomes, but not for families with less than $2,000 of taxable income after deductions and exemptions. The other is that single persons would not benefit.

But these flaws, it is pointed out, could be balanced by compensating provisions for the lower incomes and for single persons. And thus far, no way other than this has been found to deal with the same time with two existing discriminations:

(1) That between married couples in the ten community property areas and in the rest of the states; and

(2) In non-Community Property states, the discrimination between families who depend principally upon the husband's wages—and cannot split those—and families with investments who by gifts, joint tenancies, family trusts and similar devices, do succeed in splitting their joint incomes and lowering their taxes.

Model T Ford Catches On Fire
The fire department made a run Wednesday night at 8:47 o'clock to the corner of Fourth street and Lamine avenue where a 1921 Model T Ford coupe, jointly owned by Bob Franke, 1817 South Osborne and Jim Askren, 1219 East Sixth street, had backfired and caught on fire. No damage resulted.

Suspicious People
ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 12—(AP)—Police Dispatcher Eddie Conley called Squad Car No. 553 to "check on two suspicious men sitting in a parked car at Sherman and Pascal avenues."

The squad car easily found the men in question—a couple of detectives who were looking for other suspicious men.

More Good Juicy Steaks And Roasts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—The agriculture department had good news for consumers hungry for more good juicy beefsteaks and roasts.

It reported that the number of light weight and unfattened cattle available for feeding to high quality and heavy weights in the mid-western corn belt will probably be the largest on record by the first of the year.

Present indications are that farmers will feed these cattle to heavy weights before marketing them. Corn supplies are abundant and the report said grain is favorably priced in relation to prices for good quality slaughter cattle.

In most other sections of the country, feeding operations are expected to be a little smaller than last year.

The midwestern fattened cattle should start moving to market in considerable volume late this winter and reach a peak in the spring and summer.

Hubbard Tigers
Beat Mexico 22-13

The C. C. Hubbard Tigers outclassed the Mexico Wildcats in a hotly contested game in the C. C. Hubbard gymnasium Wednesday evening, to bring victory to themselves in a close game that ended 22 to 13.

Hubbard jumped to a 7-4 lead in the first quarter and held that lead through out the game. In the third quarter, Mexico pulled up within two points, 12-10.

Stevenson, Hubbard sharpshooting captain, tossed in 10 points to grab high point honors of the evening.

Payne, Sedalia guard displayed some ball-handling that may take him far in a collegiate circle.

In preliminary game, the Mexico "B" team defeated the Sedalia "B" team by a score of 17 to 14 in a hard fought contest.

Coach Broddus will take his boys to Mexico Saturday to participate in an early conference tournament with the hope of bringing early season honors to the Tigers and to Sedalia.

Don Faurot Speaks At Grid Banquet

Annual Affair Given
By Sedalia's Four
Civic Organizations

The Smith-Cotton high school football team of 1946, undisputed champions of the Central Missouri Conference, Wednesday night were honor guests at the annual football banquet given at the Epworth M. E. Church by Sedalia's four leading civic clubs. Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and the Optimist clubs all joined together to do honor to the high school group.

Tells Of Missouri Advantages

Don Faurot, University of Missouri's football coach, was the principal speaker. Coach Faurot, used as his topic the "Value of football, and progress it has made in College." However, the famous football coach didn't stick strictly to football, but reviewed the possibilities of education at the university.

In opening his talk he told the boys, that football was not everything as many boys think when they go to high school and college. "The first thing I want to tell you is to keep your school work up. Many boys do this by the skin of their teeth just to get to play football, but I do no encourage barely getting through but insist on players getting good grades," he said.

Coach Faurot told of Missouri's plays and that he was going to stay with the "T" formation. He explained how it worked, and what advantages the team using it had. He then explained why Missouri was not getting many of the big teams at Columbia, "it is due," he said, "to our small stadium. Until we can have accommodation for larger crowds it will be a long time before the big time schools come out here."

Not Recruiting Players

The coach then said, "In reference to our team, I use every Missouri high school boy I can possibly get out on the field. We do not recruit football players from Kansas, Illinois, Oklahoma, Iowa and other states. If they come, it is because they like Missouri and not because they were recruited. However, I might say at this time, I would like to see you seniors come on over to Missouri, and I don't necessarily mean just you football players, but all students. We have the school and just what you want in education."

In closing Coach Faurot paid tribute to Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow and his assistant Robert "Bob" Rogers, and also to the champions of the conference. Following his talk he showed several motion pictures of Missouri in this fall.

More than 150 members of the four clubs were present, at the banquet besides the thirty-three football players and coaches. Father A. J. Brunswick, president of Kiwanis; J. U. Morris, president of Rotary, Cline Cain, past president of Lions, and Dr. Ben Klein, president of the Optimist clubs were introduced and gave short talks.

A quartet composed of Bob Wild, Paul Ginn, Carl Yessen, and Aubrey Case sang several numbers during the program.

Philip McLaughlin, program chairman for Kiwanis, acted as toastmaster of the meeting. He introduced Coach Dow who in turn introduced the football players, and his Assistant Rogers. He also paid tribute to Coach Albert Steiner, who assisted with the more than seventy-five boys who were out all-season for football.

The boys present were:

Russell Case, Don Walz, Bob Schultz, Frank Potts, Dick Dean, Bob Cahill, Gene Hargrove, Wayne Ragar, Don Blankenship, Forrest Rumsey, Babe Tipton, Larry Vilmer, Bob Monsees.

Bob Salmons, and Marvin Hangan, team managers.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton Jr.
NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A couple of kids named Charley Fusari and Chuck Taylor are going to have a fight at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. That's important mainly because they're not fighters—they're the first crop of boxers developed since the war—the welterweights... Fusari, 21-year-old son of an Irvington, N. J., milkman turned pro only two years ago and since then knocked out 56 straight victories, 32 knockouts. He was supposed to fight Tippy Larkin in a "Jersey natural" that Mike Jacobs snatched for the Garden. Tipper couldn't get ready so Mike called upon a Colossal, Pa., kid who developed in the sticks after leaving the army and who stepped into New York's big time less than a year ago... In addition to these two, the new fighters are the same gang Tony Pellegrino, Bumy Kessler, Art Aragon, Billy Graham and a few others aiming at "oldster" Ray Robinson. The only other division to turn out many new fighters is the middleweight weight with such fighters as Artie Levine, Pete Mead and Red Fritch and the percentage of pre-war fighters at the top of this group is higher.

Discouraging Outlook

Concluding of a note from Elmer Salter, who just finished beating the drums for Auburn's footballers in a win 4 lost 6 season, and going to have to stick to the only winning team, cross country because it looks like our basketball team will do well to win as many as our gridiron did."

Bad News

Bob O'Shaughnessy, ace of that smooth-working Nevada basketball team, has agreed to sign with the baseball Dodgers when he leaves college. Coach Bo McMillan has signed with the Atlanta franchise for his 13 football seasons at Indiana. In between eight predecessors did between 1900 and Bo's arrival... George Gallagher of Erie, Pa., has used the same pair of bowling shoes for 38 years. Obviously, quite a feat.

Assistance is

New Disability
Income Feature
To be Provided

The Sedalia Veterans Administration office gave assistance to 2,312 veterans during November, W. F. Fidler, Jr., contact representative in charge of the local office reported today. In addition, 647 applications for government benefits were prepared for visitors to the office.

Fidler today reminded veterans who have National Service Life Insurance that they now may be insured against total disability.

Total disability income benefits now may be added to any plans of NSLI upon application, proof of good health and payment of an extra premium, Fidler said.

Premium rates for the disability coverage range from 6 cents 94 cents a month per $1,000 of insurance, depending on the insured's age and type of policy.

Monthly Benefits

The disability benefits are at the rate of $5 a month for each $1,000 of insurance and are payable after the veteran has been totally disabled continuously for 6 months or more. The monthly benefits will continue to be paid as long as the insured remains totally disabled. However, the disability must commence before the veteran's 60th birthday.

Truman Found With 'Missouri Dander Up'

'Very Much Aware of Need of Housing For the Veterans'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(P)—President Truman, "with his Missouri dander up," was pictured as apparently determined to keep a measure of control over housing materials and to continue rent curbs, although perhaps with revisions.

After a White House visit, commander-in-chief Louis E. Starr of the Veterans of Foreign Wars told reporters he found Mr. Truman "very much aware of the need of housing for veterans, determined to correct the shortage" and to name a successor shortly to Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt, resigned.

Starr reported that although Mr. Truman said he had not made up his mind on a man to run the vast program, he was "looking for a builder thoroughly familiar with the problems."

Starr said he gained the impression that rent controls might be revised upward in some cases.

On Capitol Hill, congressmen heard insisten' demands from Nashville, Tenn., business men for abandonment of all controls on construction.

Starr, who spent 15 minutes with the President along with two other VFW officials, Omar S. Ketchum, legislative director, and Bonner Fellers, Press chief, said he gained the impression Wyatt's post may be filled within a couple of days.

The President, he said, apparently has "a very definite down-to-earth housing program to be decided later."

Meanwhile, David L. Krooth, acting National Housing Administrator in Wyatt's post, told the house committee investigating surplus property, that the housing program may turn back a quarter of a billion dollars to the federal treasury in unused subsidy payments.

Krooth's disclosure brought from Committee Chairman Slaughter (D Mo.) the observation that Wyatt "didn't know what he was talking about" when he criticized Congress last spring for trimming the Wyatt request for a $600,000,000 subsidy fund.

Disabled Vet Finds Loss Of Hands No Handicap

Writing comes easier now for John Snell. He improved flexibility of his artificial hands by substituting fishing line swivels for rigid wires. Here he signs for new truck with George Orphal, Motor company executive.

By NEA Service

LONDON, Ohio (NEA)—John Snell came out of the army with two purple hearts, five battle stars and no hands. Hands or no hands, his post-war record to date is one that many a veteran hopes to duplicate. Sympathy is the last thing Snell needs. He is successful yearning his own living. He married his childhood sweetheart. He commands his local Veterans of Foreign Wars post. And he sees no reason why everything isn't going to continue just as good, or maybe even better, in the future.

A time clerk in pre-war days, Snell became a corporal in the 18th Regiment of the famous First Division. During street fighting in Bonn, Germany, Snell heard a frightening "click" from one of the hand grenades dangling from his belt. Somehow the pin in one of the grenades had caught in the harness and accidentally was pulled. Snell grabbed the grenade in both hands, hoping to rip it loose and throw it. He was too late. The grip probably saved his life by absorbing part of the blast, but it cost him his hands.

Loss of his hands got Snell down "for sure" in the early days of his hospitalization. Then he decided the Army's hooks weren't so bad. After six months, the Army let him go home to London.

His old job was out, Snell decided, but selling trucks wasn't. He got a job with a sales agency here and went out to find some business. He talked to everyone who might conceivably be interested in a truck, and even made a personal survey of all 192 truck owners in Madison county. It gave him a wide acquaintance that soon started to pay dividends.

Less than a year after his discharge, the 24-year-old veteran piled up such a sales record and showed so much enthusiasm that the sales director of a big truck manufacturer invited him to the plant in Detroit.

He drove a new truck home for delivery to one of his customers. Snell felt that as well as his hand hooks worked, they could still work better. In his old fishing tackle box he found the answer. By replacing the rigid wires that controlled the artificial hands with ordinary fishing line swivels he gave the hooks more flexibility and made writing much easier. A manufacturer already is using his improvement to help other handless veterans.

Last month Snell married his childhood sweetheart, Jean Youkum, of Dundee, Mich., who had grown up with Snell in nearby Summit Hill. He put the wedding ring on her finger himself.

Today Snell has come a long way from the GI whose hands and future were shattered by a grenade explosion. He's working, not worrying, and if everything keeps on as it is now, he foresees the day when he will have his own agency.

High Point Club Christmas Party

The High Point Homemakers club held its Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Ross Stephens. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Roy Fender and was opened by singing, "Silent Night."

Roll call was answered with giving favorite songs.

The home was decorated for the Christmas season with the main feature a lighted Christmas tree. The afternoon was spent playing games which were directed by Mrs. John Wilken after which a gift exchange was enjoyed.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. L. E. Braddus and Mrs. M. F. Houk. The next meeting will be January 8 at the home of Mrs. Roy Fender.

THE GREATEST BAKING POWDER IMPROVEMENT IN 50 YEARS!

Improved WITH...

FOOD CALCIUM

1. BAKINGS LOOK BETTER... THE FOOD CALCIUM, in the new KC permits more even distribution of the fine, active ingredients throughout the baking powder. This promotes more uniform action—gives bakings the light, smooth texture and inviting rich appearance everyone enjoys.

2. BETTER TASTE... New KC assures full flavor of other ingredients—in your baked goods you get no soda taste from KC.

3. BETTER FOR YOU, TOO... KC makes every thing you bake with it a valuable source of FOOD CALCIUM—adding 2 to 5 times more FOOD CALCIUM than the fresh milk used in a baking, depending on the recipe. Thus KC joins milk as a fine source of this vital food element.

Dr. O'Brien
Don't Disturb a
Dislocated Shoulder

By William A. O'Brien, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Dislocation of the shoulder results from the arm's being forced outward and upward until the head of the bone leaves the socket and rests below, behind, or in front of the joint.

A shoulder dislocation is indicated by the way in which the victim holds his arm and by the existence of a vacancy where the head of the bone naturally should be. Dislocations are produced by falls, unusual twisting motions and strong muscular exertion.

Skilful Care Required

A dislocated shoulder is extremely painful. The patient usually holds the hand on the injured side to support the forearm, keeping the arm close to his body.

First-aiders should not attempt to reduce a dislocated shoulder. Unskilled efforts may further damage torn ligaments.

While it is possible to get a dislocated shoulder back into place without giving an anesthetic, usually it is not wise to do so.

The patient is placed flat on his back on a firm surface, and the physician holds the elbow on the affected side with one hand and the wrist with the other. The arm is pulled downward as the wrist and forearm are moved slowly outward. No attempt at force is made, because of the danger of further tearing the ligaments and muscles.

While the upper arm is held in this position, the elbow is brought around to the front of the chest and held there as the affected hand and forearm are swung across the body, to permit the hand to rest upon the opposite shoulder. At this point the bone slips back into position unless the head is caught in the torn ligaments.

When this method fails, the shoeless foot of the surgeon is placed in the armpit, to assist in getting the head of the bone back in place.

After the shoulder dislocation has been reduced, a large pad is placed in the armpit, and the arm is bandaged at the side of the body, leaving the hand free. The hand and fingers are moved from time to time, to keep the muscles from becoming stiff.

Move Arm Cautiously

It may be necessary to keep the arm in this position for some time. When the arm is moved, caution should be observed, to keep the head of the bone from slipping.

Any activity which requires sudden upward reaching of the arm or the use of the arm over the head may cause difficulties until the structures are finally healed.

Shoulder dislocations have a tendency to recur, due to weakening and stretching of the joint capsule. An operation on the joint to keep the head of the bone in place is advisable in such cases.

A fracture complicating a dislocated shoulder is a difficult in-

RED hobbled painfully down the long hospital corridor and back again. He had tried and quickly discarded a pair of crutches on his first day out of bed. Now with the thick wooden cane Russel had brought him he was able to walk without assistance.

Russel came down the corridor, recognized Red taking his walking exercises and hastened to catch up with him.

"Russ looked unusually cheerful. "The doctor's going to release you tomorrow," he reported, falling into step beside Red. "Janice and I will be around first thing in the morning and pick you up."

"Good," Red grunted. "I'm getting damned tired of this place." He sniffed the disinfectant-laden air and made a face.

"It's been a drag, I know," Red admitted. The week the doctor had first set as the length of time Red must remain in the hospital, had lengthened into two. Red's injured leg hadn't healed quite as fast as had been expected. They were all frankly impatient to get started back east.

There was another angle to the delay which worried Russel. The accident was going to cost Red a quarter in school. It would be too late for him to register by the time they got home. He brought it up now.

Red gave his attention with an effort to what Russel was saying. Funny, how remote and long ago going to school seemed. In fact, he'd forgotten school altogether, concentrating as he had been this last week upon a far different problem. The problem of trying to walk without limping when the pain there under his knee was like an open knife wound every time he took a step.

"What—eh? Oh yes—school . . .

He remembered his funny little jury to treat. It is often necessary to insert a pin to hold the fractures together.

QUESTION: I have heard of the use of radioactive iodine in the treatment of goiter. My physician informs me that my heart is too weak for surgery. Would the iodine treatment help me?

ANSWER: Your physician may facilitate an answer to your question by referring you to a hospital or medical center where radioactive iodine can be obtained. Only limited quantities have been made available as yet. The treatment attacks the goiter by releasing rays in the thyroid gland.

computation of time and miles and said: "We ought to be home by Friday night."

Red looked at him with interest. For the first time it struck him that Russel had changed since the night of the accident.

ELISE VARNEY looked up at the grimy calendar on the wall of the laboratory over her work table. Friday—Friday the 27th. Two weeks tomorrow night since Janice had phoned her in the wee hours of the morning to tell her that Russel and Red had been in an automobile accident.

Two weeks—and she wasn't able yet to forget the meaning of her own reaction.

For she had cried frantically into the phone: "Janice—Janice, is he dead?"

"No—" Janice had naturally assumed that she had meant Russel. "Russell sent the telegram himself," she said soothingly. "He says he's perfectly all right."

"But Red—" Elise's voice had died to a whisper in her dry throat.

Fortunately Janice herself had been too excited to analyze words. "Red—he's hurt. I don't know how badly."

Elise sat before the phone while the room whirled dizzily around her. Fear made her physically ill. From a great distance she had heard Janice's voice going on:

"I wish you'd come over, Elise—and be here with Dad until we hear more. He's pretty upset. I'm going to fly out and see if Russel is really all right."

"All right," Elise had said like an echo. "I'll get dressed and call a taxi. I'll be right over."

But still she had sat there holding the phone in her hands after Janice had hung up.

"If he dies . . ." she had thought.

Only then it began to dawn upon her that she had thought only of Red. Had been afraid only for him.

Not for ever a breath of time had her fear encompassed Russel. And he was the man she was going to marry—the man she had written to that very night promising to marry him when he returned.

Parking Bans, Underground Garages Ease, But Do Not Solve, Cities' Traffic Troubles

This Philadelphia street was jammed with traffic before "no parking" orders were issued. Now traffic has speeded up, accidents lessened. Merchants were convinced parking ban would have little effect on sales.

By NEA Service

Now that the automobile has so effectively replaced the horse, U.S. traffic engineers would like to find something to replace the automobile on crowded city streets.

In every large city and most of the smaller ones the traffic problem has become one of the most acute municipal authorities have to deal with.

Offered solutions vary all the way from "no parking" bans over downtown areas to gigantic underground garages.

Philadelphia was the first major city to try the "no parking" treatment. Robert A. Mitchell, city traffic engineer, foreseeing opposition by merchants to the ban, made a survey of the area that produced these findings:

1. Eighty-eight per cent of all shoppers came into town on public transit vehicles or by rail.

2. Eight per cent came by private automobile.

3. Three per cent walked.

4. One per cent came by taxicab.

5. Only two per cent of all the parked cars lining the curbs in the downtown area belonged to shoppers.

Armed with this information, Mitchell had no trouble convincing merchants that abolition of curb parking would cause little or no inconvenience to retail buyers.

Traffic Speeded Up

As a result of the parking ban, motorists now can whiz through downtown Philadelphia in half the time required formerly. Street car and bus riders save 15 to 22 per cent in time, and bunching of transit vehicles has been practically eliminated. Stop lights have been readjusted for faster traffic speeds and the accident rate in the affected area has been reduced five per cent against an increase in the city-wide accident rate of 29 per cent.

New York, Indianapolis and other cities are experimenting with the no-parking ban but all experience so far proves that to be at all effective enforcement must be complete. One parked car bottles up one entire traffic lane for an entire block.

Notwithstanding effectiveness of elimination of curb parking, it has only eased and not solved the traffic problems of cities. Widening of streets once suggested as a possibility, has not proved practical. In some cases this would mean shaving the face from structures like the Empire State Building in New York to add 10 feet to a crowded side street.

Cleveland and Baltimore both have had progress towards reducing downtown traffic by building parking lots away from congested areas and arranging for established transit systems to carry shoppers into the shopping areas.

Cleveland's city government converted several acres of waste land along Lake Erie into a huge parking lot, supervised by city employees, where automobile may park free of charge. Cleveland Transit System provides transportation between the parking lot and downtown. In Baltimore, Adrian Hughes, manager of the Baltimore Transit Co., adopted the idea and built a parking lot on the fringe of the downtown area where motorists may park for a small fee and continue their trip on a special transit line. Hughes visualizes a perimeter of such parking lots surrounding downtown Baltimore which he feels will materially reduce the traffic load on Baltimore's narrow city streets.

San Francisco built an underground garage at a cost of $1,500,000, capable of handling 1,700 automobiles.

Underground Parking

Los Angeles, Kansas City, Philadelphia and New York all are considering underground parking and Hartford, Conn., plans an above-ground skyscraper garage. New York City and Madison Square Garden Corp. are talking of cooperating on a $20,000,000 two-block-square exhibition and sports arena to be built in connection with a garage large enough to handle 2,000 automobiles.

A number of cities are working or plans for express highways leading into and through congested areas. But these, like underground or skyscraper garages are expensive undertakings and other city agencies, such as schools, neglected during the war years, are clamoring for bigger cuts of the municipal tax dollar.

George C. Diehl, past president of the American Automobile Association, thinks the substitution of public transportation lines for private cars in congested areas may, after all, be the best out.
